| Poem       | Subject  | 3 Key(Tone, struc  | Voice   |   |
|------------|--|--|---|---|
| Ozymandias | Human power is only temporary and even the most  | Tone: Half sunk, ashattered visagelies                         | The tone suggests fragility and the ephemeral nature of power.  | Shelley was a Romantic poet who believed in the power of nature.lt acts as        |
|            | powerful humancreations cannotresist the power ofnature.   | Really importantmoment: My nameis Ozymandias, Kingof Kings | Highlights that he believed he was the ultimate king - shows his hubris.  | a warning to anyone whothinks they are immortalthat power won't last.     |
|            |  | lmagery: Colossalwreck   | The short phrase sums up how man's power does not last forever because it is consumed by nature's immeasurable power.   |   |
| Prelude    | Conflict betweenman and nature:nature proves it is   | man and nature: nature proves it is  through the water like a swan     | This suggests that he feels masterful and confident and has dominion over nature.   | This Romantic poet believed in the power and beauty of nature and its capacity to |
|            | more powerfuland can makeman feeloverwhelmed andinsignificant.   | Really importantmoment: Hugepeak, black andhuge            | This line marks the shift in the poem (volta) when nature becomes dominant and threatening.   | overwhelm man's power. The incident was an incident from Wordsworth's own life.   |
|            |  | lmagery: Trouble tomy dreams                                       | This helps us to empathise with the narrator and establishes a huge contrast to the tone and mood at the start.   |   |
| London     | Explores the abuse of power in Victorian England and the lack of power amongst the poor who are controlled by society. | Tone: Where the charter'd Thames does flow                             | A river is normally a symbol of freedom but chartered suggests London is a city of restriction and confinement.   | Set during the industrial revolution at a time when there was a revolution in     |
|            |  | Really importantmoment:The mind-forgedmanacles I hear      | The metaphor suggests the city controls people's minds. This metaphor is reflected in the extremely rigid and inescapable structure and rhyme scheme of the poem. | France. Blake is criticising the government and the compliance of the people.     |
|            |  | lmagery: runs inblood down palacewalls                         | That the blood of ordinary people will stain the juxtaposed elite of society.   |   |

| Poppies                | The powerlessness of the mother who must deal with her son's departure to war. | Tone: Armistice /poppies / wargraves                                   | This semantic field of memorial creates a solemn tone of remembrance in the first stanza.  | The poem is focused on the idea of poppies as symbols of memorial and explores   |   |
|------------------------|--|--|--|--|---|
|                        |  | Really importantmoment: 'the worldoverflowing like atreasure chest | The simile suggests an outpouring of emotions potentially fond and nostalgic from the word 'treasure'  | the feelings of those who lose their loved ones to war. Weir includes her expertise with textiles in the poem.                           |   |
|                        |  | lmagery: Hoping tohear yourplayground voice                            | This sensory imagery suggests a sense of absence and loss - loss of childhood and of innocence.  | роепі.   |   |
| Remains                | Explores the long term psychological   | Tone: Probably armed, possibly not   | Creates a tone of nonchalance.which is shattered by the volta in the poem.   | This poem highlights the problem of post-traumatic   |   |
|                        | effects that conflict in war has on a soldier.                                 | Really importantmoment:End of story, exceptnot really              | The moment where the speaker realises he will forever live with the guilt through the flashbacks of the killing.   | stress disorder in soldiers. Armitage gives a poetic voice to the experience of Guardsman Tromans.                                       |   |
|                        |  | Imagery: His bloodylife in my bloodyhands                              | This line uses repetition of blood to show how the soldier's life has been affected so much by the guilt he feels after killing the man. Allusion to Macbeth and the motif of guilt. |  |   |
| Storm on theIsland | The conflictbetween manand nature can                                  | Tone: We areprepared: we buildour houses squat                         | The people on the island are shown to be well prepared for any attack from the weather through the word choices and short concise phrases.   | The poet was born on an isolated storm-battered island which acts as a   |   |
|                        | be read as an allegory of political conflict. The power of the                 | allegory of political conflict.  The power of the Spits like a tames           | Really importantmoment:Spits like a tamedcat turned savage   | This simile marks a change in tone when the weather suddenly becomes violent. The enjambment across stanzas highlights the sudden shift. | metaphor for the stormy political troubles in Ireland. Heaney live through the Troubles and builds the idea of Stormont into his title. |
|                        | instill fear intoman.  | Imagery: It is a hugenothing that wefear                               | This oxymoronic line suggests that fear is ever present in a volatile natural and/or political environment.  |  |   |
| WarPhotographer    | The powerful war images contrast with the                                      | Tone: Spools ofsuffering set out inordered rows                        | This line shows how the photographer brings order to the chaos in the images when he develops them   | The speaker is bitter aboutthe indifferent way inwhich people view modern  |   |
|                        | detached waythey are consumed  | Really important   | This line links to how the speaker feels his job is pointless as people who  | warfare throughnewspapers. Duffy was   |   |

|                                | in a conflictbetweenwarzones and ruralEngland.                                      | moment He stares impassivelyand they do not care Imagery :Blood stained into foreign dust                           | see his pictures in the news are desensitised to violence  A visual reminder of death, this foreshadows the memories that are going to haunt him.          | exploring the experience of friends who were war photographers. She gives the poem a universal feeling.                 |
|--------------------------------|---|---|--|---|
| My LastDuchess             |   | Tone: my lastduchesslooking asif she were alive   | 'last' implies the speaker is seeking a new wife while the simile implies the speaker prefers the portrait to the real woman because it can be controlled. | Browning creates a dramaticmonologue based on theDuke of Ferrera from the                                       |
|                                |   | Really importantmoment:I gave commandsthen all smilesstopped  | The line 'I gave commands' is an indirect way of saying he had his wife killed off to stop her from smiling at others.                                     | Italian Renaissance to indirectly criticise hidden sin and patriarchy in the Victorian era.                             |
|                                |   | Imagery: NoticeNeptune thoughtaming a sea horse   | The fact the speaker points out another work of art near the portrait shows the speaker views the duchess as just an object rather than a real person.     |   |
| Exposure                       | Nature is more powerful and   | Tone: Merciless icedeast winds knive us   | The personification and sibilance emphasises the brutality of the weather in the trenches.   | Wilfred Owen wrote during the bitterly cold   |
|                                | deadly than bullets and Shells. Owen exposes the realities and                                  | Really importantmoment:For love of Godseems dying   | Could mean that they are losing their faith or love for God or that they feel God's love for them is dying.  | winter of 1917. He wanted to truthfully show the real conditions for soldiers on the trenches, to expose the horrors of |
|                                | horrors of war.   | Imagery: All theireyes are ice  | Could refer to the dead soldiers, exposed for so long to brutal conditions, or the burial party, numb to their task.                                       | war and to counter the propaganda back at home.   |
| Charge of theLight Brigade | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·   | Tone: When can their glory fade?  | This rhetorical question establishes a tone of admiration for the light brigade as the implied answer is never.  | Tennyson is both honouring the bravery of the soldiers  |
|                                | the stupidity of the mission.The powerful military rhythm matches the rhythm of marching drums. | Really importantmoment: Theirs notto make reply,Theirs not to reasonwhy theirs but todo and die | The parallel phrasing shows the soldiers' only job was to fight and it was not their position to question which links to the pointlessness of war.         | (in his role as Poet Laureate) while also criticising the mistakes made by the generals in misinterpreting the command. |

|                            |  | Imagery: Into the valley of death rode the six hundred   | This line uses Biblical imagery which links the soldier's death with religious sacrifice.  |   |
|----------------------------|--|--|--|---|
| Tissue                     | We cling tootightly to powerand should     | Tone: Paper thatlets the light shinethrough.   | This establishes a tone of illumination. Paper is a man-made material. Immediately the poet establishes the idea that nature (the light of the sun) is more powerful than man. | The poems comes from a collection called 'The Terrorist at my table' in which the poet comments on global issues facing the world. Dharker was born in Pakistan and grew up in Scotland. She deals with themes of identity, the role of women in contemporary society and the |
|                            | build more thingswith paper-likequalities. | Really importantmoment: 'raise astructure nevermeant to last'  | The extended metaphor of structures symbolising life. Where each is different and unique however a reminder that we are constantly haunted by the fragility of life itself.    |   |
|                            |  | Imagery: Fly ourlives like paperkites  | This simile links to how our lives are tied and controlled by paper (in the form of money) but this power can easily fly away.   | search for meaning. She draws onher multi-cultural experience inher work.   |
| BayonetCharge          | The powerful and raw emotions involved in          | Tone: Suddenly heawoke and wasrunning  | The first line of the poem uses in medias res to reflect the confusion of the soldier who finds himself suddenly awake in a war zone.  | This poem looks at the dehumanising impact of leaving the trenches into no-man's-land. Hughes wrote this poem in the 50s and imagines the experience of being in the trenches.  |
|                            | rushing out from the trenches.                     | Doally important   | This image suggests the panic of fighting in a war overwhelms any notions of patriotism and 'molten iron' links to hell.   |   |
|                            |  | Imagery: Histerror's touchydynamite  | The last line of the poem is ominous and violent to emphasise the indescribable horror of war could reawaken at any time.  |   |
| Checking outme History | · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·              | This metaphor suggests the speaker feels he was blinded from learning about his own Caribbean cultural identity at school. | The poem looks at how history is taught and the conflict between fact and  |   |
|                            |  | moment: demnever tell me bout  | The volta shifts to a frustrated tone whereby things have been missed from his education.  | truths which is sometimesobscured by race or gender.Agard reflects on his ownexperience of the Britisheducation system.   |
|                            |  |  | This metaphor uses the verb 'carving' to show his struggle to assert his own Caribbean identity in a world ruled by white people.  | •   |

| Emigree  | Conflict between childhood memories of a place and adult understanding. The power of childhood memories of a place can negatively affect people in adulthood. | Tone: There oncewas a country   | The beginning sounds like a story, possibly a fairytale, but suggests loss alongside nostalgia.   | The poet bases many of the ideas on examples of   |
|----------|---|---|---|---|
|          |   | Really importantmoment:I have no passport,there's no way backat all | The final stanza has an additional line which introduces the idea that the loss of the mother country and home city is irreversible and permanent.  | emigration from countries like the Middle East where people are fleeing war, persecution and corruption. The poet has a fascination with 'elsewhere'.   |
|          |   | Imagery: I comb itshair and love itsshining eyes                            | The personification, which seems almost doll-like, suggests a sense of nurturing and caring, as though she will always cherish and nurture the memories of her city.                        |   |
| Kamikaze | Conflict between the rules and honour of society and the desire to return to family. The power of the Japanese government and the power of family.            | Tone: Her fatherembarked atsunrise  | This creates the sense of a journey but the title suggests it will be a journey to his death, 'Sunrise' may be a reference to the location as Japan is known as the land of the rising sun. | It was considered a great honour in Japan to die for your country. The pilot in this poem returns home and is therefore rejected by his family forever. The poem is written from a daughter's perspective in the third person. This narration creates a sense of detachment which reflects the distance the speaker feels from her father's life. |

WEEK 2: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

Maycomb was an old town, but it was a tired old town when I first knew it. In rainy weather the streets turned to red slop; grass grew on the sidewalks, the courthouse sagged in the square. Somehow, it was hotter then: a black dog suffered on a summer's day; bony mules hitched to Hoover carts flicked flies in the sweltering 5.shade of the live oaks on the square. Men's stiff collars wilted by nine in the morning. Ladies bathed before noon, after their three-o'clock naps, and by nightfall were like soft teacakes with frostings of sweat and sweet talcum.

People moved slowly then. They ambled across the square, shuffled in and out of the stores around it, took their time about everything. A day was twenty-four 10.hours long but seemed longer. There was no hurry, for there was nowhere to go, nothing to buy and no money to buy it with, nothing to see outside the boundaries of Maycomb County. But it was a time of vague optimism for some of the people: Maycomb County had recently been told that it had nothing to fear but fear itself.

WEEK 3: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

I remember him as if it were yesterday, as he came plodding to the inn door, his sea-chest following behind him in a hand-barrow; a tall, strong, heavy, nut-brown tanned man; his tarry pigtail falling over the shoulders of his soiled blue coat; his hands ragged and scarred, with black, broken nails; and the sabre cut across one cheek, a dirty, livid white. I remember him looking round the cove and whistling to himself as he did so, and then breaking out in that old sea-song that he sang so often afterwards: "Fifteen men on the dead man's chest – yo-ho-ho and a bottle of rum!"

He sang in a high, old tottering voice that seemed to have been tuned and broken at the capstan bars. Then he rapped on the door with a bit of stick like a handspike that he carried, and when my father appeared, called roughly for a glass of rum. This, when it was brought to him, he drank slowly, like a connoisseur, lingering on the taste, and still looking about him at the cliffs and up at our signboard.

WEEK 4: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

London - William Blake

I wander thro' each charter'd street, Near where the charter'd Thames does flow. And mark in every face I meet Marks of weakness, marks of woe.

In every cry of every Man, In every Infants cry of fear, In every voice: in every ban, The mind-forg'd manacles I hear

How the Chimney-sweepers cry Every blackning Church appalls, And the hapless Soldiers sigh Runs in blood down Palace walls

But most thro' midnight streets I hear How the youthful Harlots curse Blasts the new-born Infants tear And blights with plagues the Marriage hearse.

WEEK 5: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

Question: How does the writer structure the poem for effect? [8 marks]

ı

Half a league, half a league, Half a league onward, All in the valley of Death Rode the six hundred. "Forward, the Light Brigade! Charge for the guns!" he said. Into the valley of Death Rode the six hundred.

П

"Forward, the Light Brigade!"
Was there a man dismayed?
Not though the soldier knew
Someone had blundered.
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die.
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

Ш

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them
Volleyed and thundered;
Stormed at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well,
Into the jaws of Death,
Into the mouth of hell
Rode the six hundred.

IV

Flashed all their sabres bare,
Flashed as they turned in air
Sabring the gunners there,
Charging an army, while
All the world wondered.
Plunged in the battery-smoke
Right through the line they broke;
Cossack and Russian
Reeled from the sabre stroke
Shattered and sundered.
Then they rode back, but not
Not the six hundred.

٧

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon behind them
Volleyed and thundered;
Stormed at with shot and shell,
While horse and hero fell.
They that had fought so well
Came through the jaws of Death,
Back from the mouth of hell,
All that was left of them,
Left of six hundred.

VΙ

When can their glory fade?
O the wild charge they made!
All the world wondered.
Honour the charge they made!
Honour the Light Brigade,
Noble six hundred!

WEEK 6: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

Question: How does the poet present the reality of war? [24 marks]

Bayonet Charge - Ted Hughes

Suddenly he awoke and was running- raw
In raw-seamed hot khaki, his sweat heavy,
Stumbling across a field of clods towards a green hedge
That dazzled with rifle fire, hearing
Bullets smacking the belly out of the air He lugged a rifle numb as a smashed arm;
The patriotic tear that had brimmed in his eye
Sweating like molten iron from the centre of his chest, -

In bewilderment then he almost stopped In what cold clockwork of the stars and the nations
Was he the hand pointing that second? He was running
Like a man who has jumped up in the dark and runs
Listening between his footfalls for the reason
Of his still running, and his foot hung like Statuary in mid-stride. Then the shot-slashed furrows

WEEK 8: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

Question: In War Photographer, how does the writer convey the War Photographer's feeling about his job? [24 marks]

In his dark room he is finally alone with spools of suffering set out in ordered rows. The only light is red and softly glows, as though this were a church and he a priest preparing to intone a Mass.

Belfast. Beirut. Phnom Penh. All flesh is grass.

He has a job to do. Solutions slop in trays beneath his hands, which did not tremble then though seem to now. Rural England. Home again to ordinary pain which simple weather can dispel, to fields which don't explode beneath the feet of running children in a nightmare heat.

Something is happening. A stranger's features faintly start to twist before his eyes, a half-formed ghost. He remembers the cries of this man's wife, how he sought approval without words to do what someone must and how the blood stained into foreign dust.

A hundred agonies in black and white from which his editor will pick out five or six for Sunday's supplement. The reader's eyeballs prick with tears between the bath and pre-lunch beers. From the aeroplane he stares impassively at where he earns his living and they do not care.

WEEK 9: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

Question: How does the poet structure the poem to convey their message? [8 marks]

The Emigree

There once was a country... I left it as a child but my memory of it is sunlight-clear for it seems I never saw it in that November which, I am told, comes to the mildest city. The worst news I receive of it cannot break my original view, the bright, filled paperweight. It may be at war, it may be sick with tyrants, but I am branded by an impression of sunlight.

The white streets of that city, the graceful slopes glow even clearer as time rolls its tanks and the frontiers rise between us, close like waves. That child's vocabulary I carried here like a hollow doll, opens and spills a grammar. Soon I shall have every coloured molecule of it. It may by now be a lie, banned by the state but I can't get it off my tongue. It tastes of sunlight.

I have no passport, there's no way back at all but my city comes to me in its own white plane. It lies down in front of me, docile as paper; I comb its hair and love its shining eyes. My city takes me dancing through the city of walls. They accuse me of absence, they circle me. They accuse me of being dark in their free city. My city hides behind me. They mutter death, and my shadow falls as evidence of sunlight.

WEEK 10: Exam Question (Homework task 2)

Question: Consider how the realities of war are conveyed in 'Remains' and ONE other poem. [30 marks]

Remains

On another occasion, we got sent out to tackle looters raiding a bank.

And one of them legs it up the road, probably armed, possibly not.

Well myself and somebody else and somebody else are all of the same mind, so all three of us open fire.

Three of a kind all letting fly, and I swear I see every round as it rips through his life – I see broad daylight on the other side.

So we've hit this looter a dozen times and he's there on the ground, sort of inside out, pain itself, the image of agony.

One of my mates goes by and tosses his guts back into his body.

Then he's carted off in the back of a lorry.

End of story, except not really.

His blood-shadow stays on the street, and out on patrol

I walk right over it week after week.

Then I'm home on leave. But I blink and he bursts again through the doors of the bank.

Sleep, and he's probably armed, and possibly not.

Dream, and he's torn apart by a dozen rounds.

And the drink and the drugs won't flush him out -

he's here in my head when I close my eyes, dug in behind enemy lines,

not left for dead in some distant, sun-stunned, sand-smothered land or six-feet-under in desert sand.

but near to the knuckle, here and now,

his bloody life in my bloody hands.
